

Press Release

McLean County Government Offices and Courts will be open and return to normal business operations on Friday, February 4, 2022

In the most recent communication with the National Weather Service, McLean County has been removed from the Winter Storm Warning and is now at a Winter Weather Advisory status. The winter storm including snow and winds are expected to wane as we move into the evening hours on Thursday. The road crews expect roads to be open to travel on Friday morning and will continue to plow and treat roads as necessary into the weekend.

The McLean County Circuit Court will be reopening on Friday, February 4, 2022 for all proceedings (virtual and in-person). Persons who cannot safely travel to their court proceeding should contact their attorney for rescheduling, or if they do not have an attorney, contact the McLean County Circuit Clerk on Friday morning.

Please plan for extra travel time while commuting to work and exercise caution while traveling on any snow packed roads.

Thank you,

County Administration
